

82% OF C-SUITE LEADERS PLAN TO USE A WHOLE-BRAIN APPROACH

Read more about the 3 actions for C-suite leaders to take today

accenturestrategy

States of disarray

Latin America's state-run oil giants are struggling

The companies are unprepared for the looming energy transition

Print edition | Business

Jul 13th 2019 | BOGOTÁ, CARACAS, MEXICO CITY, QUITO AND SÃO PAULO

Oil, it is often noted, can bring a country both wealth and woe. In Venezuela, by some measures home to the world's largest proven oil reserves, it has mostly been the latter of late. Petróleos de Venezuela (PDVSA) saw production peak in 1998, when Hugo Chávez was elected president. In the years that followed the left-wing tribune and his authoritarian successor, Nicolás Maduro, purged PDVSA's professional staff, strong-armed its international partners and raided its coffers. A sweeping American probe of bribery at the company has so far charged more than 20 people. Its current boss is a brigadier general with no oil experience. Since January, when America announced tough sanctions on PDVSA, production has plunged to the lowest levels per citizen since the 1920s. Meanwhile, millions of Venezuelans lack food and basic medicine.

PDVSA is a caricature of mismanagement. But a survey of state-controlled energy giants in Latin America, which accounts for around 10% of global oil output and 20% of proven reserves, shows dysfunction is not confined to Venezuela. Five years after the oil price crashed, output remains depressed in much of the region, even as the industry as a whole faces unprecedented disruption. The shale boom helped the United States produce 15.3m barrels of oil a day last year, about one-sixth of global output. Concerns about carbon emissions and the rise of electric cars mean that worries about peak supply have been supplanted by fears of peak demand.

Register to read this article in full

Sign up

Subscribe for unlimited access

Subscribe

Enjoy great savings

- ✓ Full access to Economist.com and our daily Espresso app
- ✓ The full weekly edition, in print, digital or audio
- ✓ Money back guarantee, if you decide to cancel at any time

Already signed up or a subscriber? Log in

PUBLICIDAD

Advertisement

Thailand 4.0

Reinvigorates ASEAN and Connects Thailand to the Global Community.

As it takes on the mantle of chair of the ASEAN in 2019, the Kingdom of Thailand has maintained an extremely favourable business environment. The IMD World Competitiveness Centre (a Swiss think tank) ranks Thailand at 25th position in its 2019 index (consisting of 63 countries) – only Singapore and Malaysia are placed ahead of it within the ASEAN. Thailand is also among the pioneering countries in the

READ MORE >

Advertisement

Bioeconomy boom

Across Thailand, researchers, government and top firms are working together to turn plants into prosperity

At science parks throughout Thailand's varied and fertile landscape, from the river plains of central Pathum Thani to the north-eastern plateau of Khon Kaen and the southern shores of Songkhla, researchers and entrepreneurs are hard at work commercialising technologies that turn biological materials (biomass) into valuable industrial products. At the

READ MORE >

Advertisement

China Focus

A special feature produced by BEING CHINA

Working in the clouds

Assistance program for the development of Tibet creates miracles in the autonomous region's 'dead zone'

FIND OUT MORE

Another brick in the wall

America closes the doors to asylum-seekers from the South

A new rule issued by the White House effectively prevents Latin Americans from claiming asylum at the southern border

DEMOCRACY IN AMERICA

The Economist

The Economist

The Economist

Darker horizon

China's growth is the slowest in nearly three decades: get used to it

A bloody stalemate

With tenacity and torture, Venezuela's awful regime is hanging on

Chaguan

Few things worry China's elite more than getting their kids into Harvard

Classified ads

Economist Job Board
Search Now

Subscribe

Keep updated

Sign up to get more from The Economist

Get 5 free articles per month, daily newsletters and more.

Email address

Sign up

About The Economist

Advertise

Reprints

Careers

Media Centre

Contact us

Help